31 UNION SQUARE, NORTH, NEW YORK

THE BOOMERANG

William Hamilton Osborne

Author of "The Blue Buckle," "The Red Mouse," etc.

Mr. Osborne's wide audience will find that in this new story of business and social life in New York he has given full play to his special gift of crisp narrative, of dramatic surprise and unexpected romance set against familiar backgrounds.

The story opens with the strange disappearance of a son of a Trust magnate, one of the principals in a fashionable church wedding. Upon the hero, Grey, is placed the responsibility for this defection and the magnate persuades Grey's father to disown him. Grey starts out to find his lost friend and at the same time to earn his own living. By a turn of fate he becomes Attorney General of New Jersey and brings suit to dissolve the food trust in which his father and the magnate are heavily interested. Thus he becomes the Boomerang.

WINGS OF DANGER

By Arthur A. Nelson

A tale of the wild lands of unknown Africa, and of a quest for a lost city. There are brave men aplenty in its pages, and fair women, with the tang of high adventure blowing like a wind through the book. A story of fierce hate and splendid love; of Ingulf the wanderer and his strange heritage; of Alan Severn and the devotion that led him into dark peril.

Cecil Rhodes is here, too, a dim and mighty figure, plotting Empire in a chaotic and barren land, De Roquemort, the debonnair Captain of the Black Company, Lord Chalmes, who finds death the greatest adventure, and a host of other men and deeds that the reader will not soon forget. In fact either danger or love casts its challenge at the feet of youth at every moment of this speeding, pulsing story of modern conquest.

THE RIVET IN GRANDFATHER'S NECK

By James Branch Cabell

Author of "The Line of Love," "Chivalry," etc.

"We little China people have a variety of rivets to prevent us from nodding and too cowardly compromise with baseness—rivets that are a part of us and force us into upright living. There is always the thing that one cannot do because one is constituted the way one is, that is the real rivet in grandfather's neck."

Time and again we have been shown the fine trappings of the Southern gentleman, but the man himself has remained a charming obscurity. In this delicately ironical, whimsical and altogether delightful romance of Virginia and the South, we are in the presence of certain phases of national life that are passing, and should have an enduring record.

The extraordinary deft and sympathetic characterization of Colonel Musgrave, the antiquarian; Charteris, the flutterer of Lichfield dovecotes; Patricia, dominant with her cleverness and diablerie, and all the other surrounding "F. F. V's," make this a book of instant and permanent appeal to all who want real human values in their reading.

The author's individuality and flavor of style pervade the narrative like the subtle perfume from old keepsakes laid in lavender; yet to those who can read between the lines there is apparent an element of criticism so vital and searching that it lifts the book from the ranks of romance and places it among the true pictures of American provincial life.

ALLOY OF GOLD

By Francis William Sullivan

Author of "The Children of Banishment"

This story follows the career of Worth Pryce, who has lived in studious detachment abroad and whose practical idealism receives a rude shock when he returns to plunge into the mad whirl and artificiality of New York social life.

In this shallow atmosphere, with its philanderers, idle wives and wasters, he loses faith in his father, his best friend and even his betrothed. During this period of cynicism and disillusionment he comes upon Ruth Barrett, a childhood friend, whose serenity and common sense help him to regain his poise and to understand the happiness of true and unselfish love. The inherent force, sincerity and sane optimism of this story will give it a place in the front rank of novels of contemporary American life.

THE INVISIBLE MIGHT

By Robert Bowman

A powerful and many-sided picture of Russian life drawn with direct simplicity and insight that suggest the perfect artistry of Tourgenieff. The action passes rapidly from Petrograd to a typical Russian country estate and ends in a Siberian convict settlement.

The author, for many years a chemical engineer and industrial organizer, has lived in the cities, camped in the forests and knows all classes of Russians from Prince to peasant. The restrained and vivid handling of this profoundly affecting story of a beautiful woman's exile and suffering, and her meeting after eight years with her English lover, signalizes the advent of a new writer of wide observation and delicate narrative skill.

JIMSY, THE CHRISTMAS KID

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of "Diane of the Green Van," "Uncle Noah's Christmas Party," etc.

A holiday presentation book full of the spirit of the old-fashioned country Christmas as Jimsy would have it, with "reg'lar Christmas card snow, sleigh bells—an' gifts—an' wreaths—an' skatin'—an' holly!"

Life in mean streets and rattle-trap tenements hasn't smothered Jimsy's ebullient spirits. His revolutionary methods of proving to his dour host, the first citizen of Lindon, that Christmas wasn't "just an extra Sunday" will point an inspiring holiday message with continuous mirthful chuckles.

THE SOUL OF THE WAR

By Philip Gibbs

Special Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle

Author of "The Street of Adventure," "Men and Women of the French Revolution," etc.

This book impassioned, but honest in its candor, is written with the emotion of a young man who has been a continuous observer of the great drama of war since the beginning of hostilities.

This is the human and psychological side of war as it is seen on the battlefield under heavy shell-fire, in bombarded towns, in field hospitals, and amid great movements of troops. The author does not concern himself with battle history or analysis of strategy, but lays bare the throbbing heart of the ghastly Brute Force, that mangles the body and tortures the mind of valiant young men. The author says in his conclusion: "More passionate than any other emotion that has stirred man through life is my conviction that any man who has seen these things, if he has any gift of expression, and any human pity, should dedicate his head and heart to the sacred duty of preventing another war like this."

THE HISTORY OF GERMANY IN THE 19TH CENTURY

By Heinrich von Treitschke

Professor of History at Berlin University.

Translated by Eden and Cedar Paul

With Introductions by William H. Dawson, Author of "Evolution of Modern Germany"

The first translation into English of one of the greatest historical works of the century is a notable publishing achievement. It is a monument of narrative skill, exhaustive research and reflection written in Treitschke's early days at Leipsic and Freiburg and must not be confused with recent translations of his truculent Chauvinistic pamphlets and utterances.

Dr. Charles Kendall Adams, late President of Cornell University, says, in the Manual of Historical Reference:

"His work in point of ability must rank among the foremost of recent historical productions."

Lord Acton said of Treitschke in 1886:

"The one writer of history who is more brilliant and powerful than Droysen. He writes with the force and fire of Mommsen. He marshals his forces on a front broader than any other man and accounts for the motives that stir the nation, as well as for the councils that govern it."

REVELATIONS OF AN INTERNATIONAL SPY

By I. T. T. Lincoln

Former Member of the British Parliament and Secret Agent of the German Government.

These astonishing revelations by Ignatius Tribich-Lincoln, a native of Hungary, a naturalized subject of England and former Liberal member of Parliament, disclose the remarkable diplomatic and political secrets of the past fifteen years.

The author's amazing knowledge of the great conspiracy to isolate Germany was gained while he was ostensibly conducting industrial investigations on the Continent for B. S. Rowntree, the cocoa magnate, and where his confidential secret service missions brought him in contact with all the important statesmen and diplomats of Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, France and Holland.

Because of the ruin of Mr. Lincoln's business by the War and the personal insult and contumely to which he, and all foreign born citizens were subjected, he decided in anger and revenge to enter the German Secret Service. By a clever ruse he won the confidence of the British War Office and Admiralty and was attached to the staff of Capt. P. W. Kenny, the head of the Secret Service Bureau of the War Office. An encounter with the detectives of the Admiralty necessitated his recent escape to this country.

MODERN GERMANY AND ITS HISTORIANS

(Niebuhr, Ranke, Mommsen, Sybel and Treitschke) By Antoine Guilland

Newly translated into English.

In no country in the world has the professor of history exercised such power as in Germany in influencing the feeling of the whole people. The author of this book studies the five important historians who have been most influential in moulding the imperial doctrines. They are Niebuhr and Ranke, the precursors of the Prussian school of history, and Mommsen, Sybel and Treitschke, the true apostles of the school. After a general introduction which points out the comparatively recent growth of Germany's passionate patriotism, the author takes up each historian and deals with his work and influence at some length.

MADAME DU BARRY, A KING'S FAVORITE

By Claude Saint-Andre

A study based upon unpublished documents. With an introduction by Pierre de Nolhac. Frontispiece in photogravure and sixteen other illustrations.

In this biography M. Saint-Andre has laid before the world convincing evidence that, whatever her weakness, the famous beauty has been greatly maligned, from the pamphleteers of her own day down to the historians of the present. The interesting documents, many of them hitherto unpublished, which form such an important part of the book, go far to prove Mme. Du Barry's innocence of much which has been attributed to her, and also her generosity and self-sacrifice, which led to her death. Incidentally, M. Saint-Andre has thrown fresh light on the life of the period and of the aristocratic French emigrés in England, to whose assistance Mme. Du Barry came on more than one occasion.

Illustrated. 8vo. About $3.50. Postage extra.

THE MARVELS OF INSECT LIFE

By Edward Step, F. L. S.

With introduction by Raymond L. Ditmars. Curator of Reptiles at the Bronx Zoological Park, New York City.

Profusely illustrated with colored plates and 636 other illustrations from life photographs and artist's drawings.

The author has been engaged for many years in making these marvelous photographic studies and observations of insect life all over the world. They will prove as fascinating to the child of ten as to the more mature reader. The descriptions of insects at home, at work, in society and at war are written in simple, untechnical language, with strict scientific accuracy in every detail.

This book is as great an achievement in the field of objective nature study as the groups of birds in native habitats in the New York Museum of Natural History. It opens the readers' eyes to the new wonders hidden from the casual observer, the metamorphosis of the grub, protective coloring and the social life of insect communities. He writes with an expert's enthusiasm of robber insects, the ant-lions of the Pyramids, who hunt their prey, and many other new discoveries. This book should be in the library of every home and school.

JACK STRAW, LIGHTHOUSE BUILDER

A New Volume in the Jack Straw Series by Irving Crump

Author of "Jack Straw in Mexico."

The first book in the Jack Straw Series, which on account of its lively and wholesome story was listed in the Boy Scout's official reading list, is followed by these new adventures with men who "do" things.

Jack Strawbridge, the captain of the Drueryville Academy football team, takes a position for the summer with a marine engineer and his crew of lighthouse builders who are constructing a beacon on Cobra Reef on the Maine Coast. Here he meets a young swordfisherman, a lad his own age and of an inventive turn, and together the two embryonic engineers have a lively time in a big construction camp. They learn the details of lighthouse building, and get an insight into the lighthouse service.

Chases on the high seas, battles with the elements, adventures with the lobster patrol and lobster pirates, and a shipwreck with thrilling rescues, are all a part of this absorbing story about two ambitious New England youngsters. The technical side of lighthouse building in this narrative received the critical approval of several eminent marine engineers.

PARTNERS OF THE FOREST TRAIL

By C. H. Claudy

Author of the "Tell Me Why Stories," "First Book of Photography," etc.

We have no hesitancy in recommending this wholesome story of the Great North Woods as one of the best things Mr. Claudy has written. A boy and his sister who are camping with their father in the Canadian forest are captured by friendly Ojibways who are on their way to Hudson Bay. Through the timely assistance of one of the squaws they escape from the Indian camp and make their way after many breathless adventures back to the blazed trail which little Nina has been thoughtful enough to make. The boy, whose bump of self-esteem is a little too prominent, and the girl, who is lacking in self-reliance, both find in these adventures an improving lesson.

And the author pictures the life of the times no less successfully than he does the heart of Sally Temple.

A Manual of the Common Invertebrate Animals. More than one thousand illustrations reinforce the text. Crown 8vo .....net 3.50

This is the first work of general purpose from which the names and affinities of the common invertebrate animals can be determined. All of the species belonging to most of the smaller groups of invertebrates occurring in the eastern and central parts of the United States, with representative species occurring in the western states and on the Pacific Coast, are included in the synopsis. In addition to the analytical tables and descriptions of species of each of the larger groups of animals, there are morphological descriptions of the groups, with some account of the habits and distribution of the animals. A history of nomenclature for each of the larger subdivisions of the animal kingdom is given, a knowledge of the historical basis of zoological names adding much to their significance.

Structural Engineers' Handbook

Data for the Design and Construction of Steel Bridges and Buildings

By MILO S. KETCHUM, C. E.

Dean, College of Engineering, University of Colorado.

896 pages, 6 x 9, 400 illustrations, 250 tables. $5.00 (21s) net, postpaid

This is not a treatise but a source book designed to supply the engineer with data, details, specifications and tables heretofore available only to a few engineers. It contains a collection of material carefully digested, classified and indexed, to give all the facts which structural engineers, designers, draftsmen and others need in all classes of structural design.

Great care has been used in details of manufacture to make the book serviceable. The size, 6 x 9 inches, with flexible leather covers, was adopted because the structural man wants a desk book, not a pocket-book.

The book lies flat when open.

The tables stand upright in the page in clear, readable type.

Special Features. A condensed form with mathematical clearness of style—drawings taken from actual working plans—tables calculated by machine and checked with great care—properties of Carnegie and Bethlehem sections in compact form for easy reference—a collection of structural details from American Bridge Company standards.

Part I. Data for Design and Details of Construction.

CONTENTS.—I. Steel Roof Trusses and Mill Buildings. II. Steel OfficeBuildings. III. Steel Highway Bridges. IV. Steel Railway Bridges. V. Retaining Walls. VI. Bridge Abutments and Piers. VII. Timber Bridges and Trestles. VIII. Steel Bins. IX. Steel Grain Elevators. X. Steel Head Frames and Coal Tipples. XI. Steel Stand-pipes and Tanks on Towers. XII. Structural Drafting. XIII. Estimates of Structural Steel. XIV. Erection of Structural Steel. XV. Engineering Materials. XVI. Structural Mechanics. XVII. Design of Steel Details.

Part II. Structural Tables.

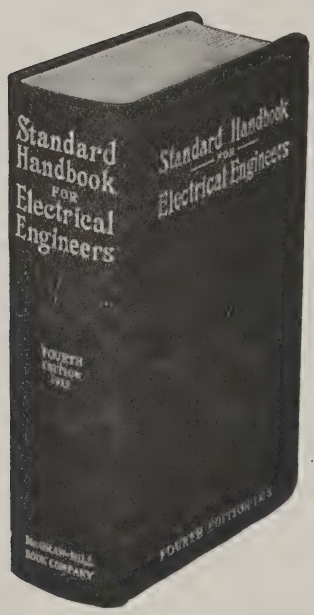
The New Standard Handbook For Electrical Engineers



Fourth Edition—Fully Revised—Entirely Reset

Edited by FRANK F. FOWLE

Formerly Associate Editor, Electrical World

2000 pages, pocket size, limp leather, thumb indexed, $5.00.

The new, fourth edition is practically a new book, revised, rewritten, reset from cover to cover.

The rapid progress in electrical development and the broader scope of the new editorial ideal underlying this work have necessitated a book of 2000 pages—more than fifty per cent. new.

An almost entirely new staff of contributors has prepared the material, including over sixty of the leading electrical engineers in the country. These new contributors were given a free hand to embody all the best in the old edition with all that was new.

On the basis of a book that has been standard since first publication, a new book has been built, broader in scope and fuller in detail—the best that could be produced.

BADEN-POWELL, SIR ROBERT, K. C. B. Memories of India, Recollections of Soldiering, Sport, etc. With 24 Illustrations in Color and one hundred Black and White by the Author. Artistically bound in Cloth, 8vo, Boxed . . . . . Net, 3 50

During the twenty-five years spent in India, Sir Robert Baden-Powell filled many note-books with his impressions, and illustrated them with sketches. For years these books have been a source of interest and pleasure to his friends. He has been constantly urged to publish them, but has hitherto been prevented by pressure of work. He has now, however, made time in which to write his recollections of the twenty-five years spent in India, and his book has the virtue of being practically written and illustrated on the spot. He deals with many phases of Indian life, including bungalow life on the plains, social life on the hills; pig-sticking and shooting, ragging and riding, campaigning on the frontier, etc. His is always an original point of view, as for instance when he gives a drawing of a bird's-eye view of a tiger beat, or the qualities that go to make the elephant a gentleman. He is an artist of remarkable talent, which, coupled with a thorough knowledge of his subjects, gives to his pictures and drawings a life and movement that render them quite in keeping with his racy recollections. These Reminiscences were in print in July, 1914, but their publication was deferred owing to the outbreak of war.

BULFINCH'S AGE OF FABLE, OR BEAUTIES OF MYTHOLOGY. New Revised Edition by Rev. J. Loughran Scott. LEADING FEATURES, AND OPINIONS CONCERNING THEM.

PRONUNCIATION OF PROPER NAMES.—All proper names are printed in black type, syllabified and accentuated. The editor in his preface says: "To know one you must know his name, especially in Mythology, where names constitute being."

"After years of experience I appreciate the value of the pronunciation of proper names in the body of the text. The time for the study is limited; it is impossible to require incessant use of dictionary. . . . I believe you have done much to secure correct spelling. . . . The illustrations in your edition are a valuable feature.

"The recognition of the mythology of Babylon, Assyria, and Phœnicia I consider timely."—Mary L. Hanna, Teacher of English, Central High School, Cleveland, Ohio.

BULFINCH'S AGE OF CHIVALRY, or KING ARTHUR AND HIS KNIGHTS. New Revised Edition by Rev. J. Loughran Scott. This New Edition, uniform with "The Age of Fable," has been thoroughly revised and a number of new chapters added. The numerous illustrations have been prepared with great care and considerable expense. As "The Age of Fable" superseded all former editions of that book, so this edition of "The Age of Chivalry" is far superior to any other work on the subject yet published.

Crown octavo, ... 1 25

"No one can read this edition of 'The Age of Chivalry' without coming in contact with the best literature of the Arthurian Legends. While retaining the old, at the same time we have created a new work. The interest of these legends naturally centers about King Arthur and Queen Guinevere. In the case of Guinevere we have added a new section, and also enlarged the chapter that treats of Arthur and the passing of his kingdom. The names ranking next in interest are those of Launcelot and Elaine; here, too, we have written an additional section. At the close of the first part we have inserted a chapter on Mediæval Legends. St. George and Robin Hood attach to an importance scarcely surpassed by King Arthur himself. We have also drawn directly from Sir Thomas Mallory, especially in connection with the adventures of Sir Tor, Sir Pellenore, Sir Gawain, Sir Launcelot, and Sir Galahad."

"A Third Part with seven additional chapters has been added, consisting largely of the writings of Ossian. Whatever may have been the origin of those strange books, they certainly embody more of the ancient spirit of Britain than any other similar work."

DAWSON, MARY. Money-Making Entertainments for Church and Charity. Some of the noblest works of church and charity are maintained by men and women who are not of the moneyed class. Mary Dawson, whose original entertainments of every description have a country-wide reputation, has this year prepared a book especially for those who want to raise money. It abounds in plans of every kind from the simplest social to the largest fair, from a dance to a pageant.

Vest-Pocket Compendium of Applied Electricity. By Paul E. Lowe, M.E., written especially for officials and employees of all grades in Electric Railway, Lighting and Industrial Systems. This work is profusely illustrated, containing over 214 illustrations, and is supplemented with a voluminous vocabulary of electrical terms and phrases.

For students of electricity, its origin and nature, and for everybody interested in any one or all of the branches of activity in the modern industries, arts and sciences, where electricity is applied, this comprehensive and conveniently arranged little work is invaluable. Whilst covering the whole field of electrical science, embodying in each subject all the salient and essential features, the author, recognizing the ever increasing importance of the Electric Railway in the development of modern business and social life, has prepared the portion of this volume treating that subject, with greater elaboration than is usual in restricted works, and with far more than ordinary care and scientific precision. In this commercial era of grinding competition, and where only superior fitness for the performance of every duty in life can be relied upon to insure success, the value of constant vigilance, close attention to details, and a determination, by diligent study and application, to master the intricacies of the machinery and apparatus with which the Electric Railway operative is entrusted cannot be too forcibly urged. The fruits of exact knowledge, and the intelligent and earnest application of it, are economical and efficient operation, and by these qualities the valuable employee is distinguished and selected for preferment.

A leading characteristic of the entire work is its thoroughly practical nature and lucid explanation of all principles by means of diagrams of circuits, etc.

Conklin's Vest-pocket Book of Familiar Quotations. By Prof. Geo. W. Conklin, of Hamilton University. No one can be expected to remember the exact words of the great authors he has read, and indeed no one has time to read over even hastily a tithe of the good things that the ages have accumulated. Hence a little book like this is indispensable. As we turn over its pages we are reminded of many wise and witty sentences we had forgotten, and we discover others we wonder at ourselves for having missed. Such a book is not to be read through at a sitting. Rather it is to be tasted every day or two.

Faulty Diction—or, Errors in the Use of the English Language, and How to Correct Them. (Vest-Pocket Size.) Thomas H. Russell, LL. B., editor-in-chief of Webster's Imperial Dictionary, did the public a great service when he wrote this book in which there are 1017 headings treated, and under some of them—plurals, for instance—over fifty every-day errors are illustrated and corrected.

Who does not make errors in speech? Probably there is no person who does not do so occasionally. To use the English language with correctness would be a phenomenon. But there are numerous faulty expressions so widely employed as to have secured something of the status of perfect diction. Many people who ought to know better believe them to be proper, and will defend them with promptitude and even passion. There is a large number of common blunders so grotesquely stupid that they raise one's gorge. They are so common that many people think the improper form the correct one.

Hill's Bridge and How to Play It. A New Book by America's Greatest Authority, Frank R. Hill.

This wonderfully complete work of 247 pages stands at the head of Bridge books and contains everything any player could possibly need or wish to know. The text is very full and instructions clear.

"The value of Mr. Hill's new handbook is in its thoroughness and its accuracy. It is really the most serviceable work on Bridge yet issued for players of all ranks."—The Tribune.

It is a remarkably compact as well as thorough treatise, covering more ground and offering more suggestions than much bulkier works on the subject.

To quote from Mr. Hill's Preface: "My endeavor, then, will be to lay before the reader the system which, after years of experience, has proved itself to be the best—that is to say, the system which is most likely to conduce to success. In doing this, I give reasons for and against the different suggestions that are advanced, and spare no effort to make the treatise complete in every branch of the game."

Ogilvie's Concise World's Atlas and Gazetteer. Based Upon the Latest Census Reports and Official Estimates.

By L. Brent Vaughan, Ph.B. The plan on which this Gazetteer is arranged is somewhat different from that usually followed. A word of explanation, however, will suffice to point out the superior method used. In the main the arrangement is alphabetic. Under the leading Political Divisions are grouped the principal facts pertaining to those divisions. For example, under France are included all the departments and the principal cities of the French Republic, with their populations according to the latest census. Likewise all mountain ranges in the world are grouped under Mountain Ranges, the rivers under Rivers, lakes under Lakes, oceans under Oceans, capes under Capes, straits, channels and sounds under Straits. This is the only gazetteer published so arranged.

The Jefferson Bible. By Thomas Jefferson. The third president of the United States, by clipping from the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, compiled a connected narrative, which he entitled, The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth. The compilation begins with the first verse of the second chapter of Luke and ends with the last portion of the sixtieth verse of the twenty-seventh chapter of Matthew. In the compilation he made use of 120 different clippings, changing from one of the Gospels to another, and frequently back again to the same chapter for another verse; in some instances taking a considerable portion of a chapter exactly as it appears in the Bible, in others rearranging the verses as best suited his purpose, and in still others using a few verses or only a small part of a given verse to round out some portion of the narrative.

THE COLLECTORS' SERIES

No path is so full of pitfalls as that of the amateur collector. In spite of text-books and elaborately illustrated volumes, he finds that the information he has absorbed is rarely that which is called for in practical experience. He returns to his guides and eventually concludes that the writer knows too much to descend to his level of inexperience. The Collectors' Handbooks are written not from the point of view of the experienced, but from that of one who knows nothing and wants to learn a great deal. Only those who have bought their experience with the currency of error can thoroughly appreciate the many difficulties with which the beginner has to contend. It is this sympathetic attitude towards the reader that makes many of these volumes unique. The editors are acquainted with all the various works on the subjects with which they deal; and, feeling that these volumes were above the heads of beginners, they set themselves to ask the question, "What information is a man most likely to require in the early stages of his hobby?" Instead of arguing from general principles to particular instances, these books reverse the process: pieces explain principles rather than principles being illustrated by pieces.

THE CHINA COLLECTOR. A Guide to the Porcelain of the English Factories. Not only has a careful investigation been made of the actual wares, but also the standard authors on the subject, past and present. Wherever the experience might add to the lucidity of the text, their works have been consulted.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS OF THE CLASSICS. These translations have been prepared with great care. They follow the original text literally, thus forming a valuable help to the student in his efforts to master the difficulties which beset him. These give an insight into their lives and the circumstances attending the appearance of their works, and will awaken fresh interest in both the text and the authors.

LOTI, PIERRE. India. Loti's idea in going to India was to discover if in the Buddhist faith he could find anything to replace the religion in which he could no longer believe. He visits the ruined temples of the ancient Gods, festooned with jungle flowers; he rises in the early mournful dawn, and penetrates where European feet have seldom trod; he listens to the languorous Oriental music on moonlight nights; he experiences nameless dreads, indescribable terrors.
Illustrated by A. Hugh Fisher. 8vo, cloth, ... Net, $2 50

——— Morocco. Pierre Loti was a member of a diplomatic mission to the Sultan of Morocco at Fez, and in this book he gives us an extraordinarily fascinating account of the journey. The departure of the caravan from Tangier, the encampments, the nightly arrival of the Mouna, the crossing of the Oued—M'Cazen in flood, the fantasias and "powder-play" of the Arab horsemen, the magnificent state entry into Fez, are described in a succession of vivid pictures of most brilliant color.
Translated by W. P. Baines, with many illustrations in color and tone. 8vo, cloth, ... Net, 2 50

——— Siam. In this book Loti realizes a dream of his boyhood: "In the depths of the forests of Siam I have seen the star of evening rise over the ruins of Angkor." Thither he takes us and his wonderful word painting makes the illustrations real, so that we not only see but live in and breathe the atmosphere of Siam.

The Robertsonian Method of learning the German, French, Spanish, Latin, and Italian languages, without the aid of a teacher, has for the last twenty years been successfully tested throughout the whole European continent; and is, without a single exception, used in teaching these languages in all the educational institutions of England, France, and Germany. In London, Mr. A. H. Monteith, the most celebrated teacher of languages in the world, has arranged and perfected this system; and his works on the Study of French, German, Spanish, Latin, and Italian Languages Without a Master, immediately obtained a sudden and extraordinary popularity.

A prominent U. S. Congressman recently consulted a leading specialist—professor in the Medical College of Johns Hopkins University—and after being charged $50.00 for a diagnosis, was told to "Buy a copy of Lieut. Müller's Book 'MY SYSTEM,' follow his directions and take no medicine." The congressman afterwards stated that the prescription was worth many times the cost. This story is vouched for by the Hon. A. W. Lafferty.

MY SYSTEM: Fifteen Minutes a Day for Health's Sake.

By Lieut. J. P. Müller. With 44 illustrations and a Time Chart. This book embodies what is stated to be the most adaptable and most scientific system of Home Exercise known. It is graded so as to make it of service to young people, elderly people, and to people not physically fit. It can be performed in whichever degree is chosen in 15 minutes, and this time includes the taking of a bath. No apparatus of any kind is required. "My System" is divided into two parts—eight exercises before the bath and ten rubbing exercises after. The system is primarily intended for people who desire to obtain and retain good health. The whole of the movements are designed to strengthen the internal organs of the body. 8vo, cloth, ... Net, $1 00

MY SYSTEM FOR LADIES. Lieut. Müller has adapted his System of Exercise to the special requirements of ladies—both young and old. The exercises are of extreme value in enabling young women to preserve and older women to regain suppleness, shapeliness, energy and health.

Seek health aright and you will attain beauty. No woman is unbeautiful if really healthy, and therefore every woman can enhance her beauty by improving her health—at a cost of only a few minutes' daily practice of "My System."

MY SYSTEM FOR CHILDREN is an adaptation of Lieut. Müller's famous System to the needs of children. It is similar to his other books in the sense that it is entirely free from crankiness, or impossible and extreme measures. It is a book which will be appreciated by every parent who wishes his or her children to grow up to strength and vitality, and to possess adequate powers of resistance to illness and fatigue, and like Lieut. Müller's System for men and women it is carefully and scientifically graded so as not to overtax or strain the muscles of the child. Also, as in the case of his other books, the author has based his System not on theory only, but on the results of actual experience.

MY BREATHING SYSTEM. Everybody knows that without air we should be unable to exist more than a few minutes, but that it is possible to exist for at least a week without water, while people have fasted from food for from 40 to 70 days and even longer. Air is nutriment, therefore, of even more importance than liquid and solid foods.

Followers of "My System" will know what importance Lieut. Müller has always attached to correct breathing. It is to the practically universal neglect of the Art of Breathing that the author attributes the prevalence of many diseases, especially those which attack the Lungs, Thorax, Heart and the Blood.

"Teach children to breathe properly," says Lieut. Müller, "and the spread of the Great White Scourge would be appreciably diminished." The best curative measure for Anemia, Chlorosis, Gout, Diabetes and other diseases of Metabolism is, he maintains, the regular practice of deep breathing exercises.

PRICE, JULIUS M. My Bohemian Days in Paris. With thirty-two illustrations specially drawn for this work by the author. Octavo, cloth, ... Net, 2 50

Julius M. Price is the well-known war artist and correspondent to the "Illustrated London News," which paper he has represented in various parts of the world. In this book he gives us a vivid and entirely novel insight of the Bohemian life of Paris in the Eighties, when he was a student at the École des Beaux Arts. Where other writers have feared to tread he has not hesitated, with the result that the atmosphere of the Quartier Latin and Montmartre of those days is over it all, and the ensemble forms a delightful narrative.

——— My Bohemian Days in London. Illustrated with thirty-two illustrations by the artist-author and a photogravure frontispiece. 243 pages. Octavo, cloth. Net, 2 50

In this book Mr. Price gives us a description of his life in the artists' quarter in London, where he was forced to earn his living before he completed his studies in Paris. The story of his first commission, his struggle for recognition by The Royal Academy and finally his connection with the Illustrated London News will be of value to art students. His life in the art quarter, escapades with models and the descriptions of many romantic adventures will doubtless enthral many readers.

STAUFFER, FRANK H. The Queer, The Quaint, and The Quizzical. A Cabinet for the Curious. Crown octavo, cloth, gilt top, with full index, $1 25

"Never did a title to a book express its contents with more fidelity than the above, for the book itself contains a little of everything that is odd, queer, quaint, and curious. As a work of reference or a volume to be picked up at leisure moments, nothing could be better. How and where the author ever found these items and short bits of information is a puzzle to the uninitiated. A good index facilitates the finding of what one wants to know."—Chicago Evening Journal.

Tragedies, one volume, crown octavo, cloth, gilt top, net, ... 1 50

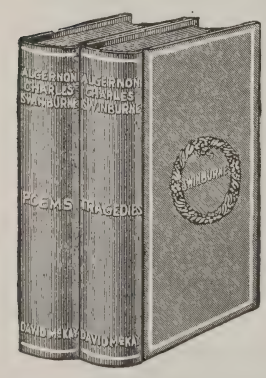
Sets in either style may be had boxed.

Each volume, 6 x 8½ ins., 1½ ins. thick, has a photogravure frontispiece and rubricated title, making a handsome set.



The issuing of this edition of Swinburne in two volumes, one "Poems" and the other "Tragedies," we feel is really needed. To get the author's works before this time meant either buying the American edition in eleven volumes or collecting the English edition, in more numerous volumes, at even greater expense. The works of all the other standard poets may be had in some compact form for library use, and Swinburne surely should not be neglected. This edition, with the exception of "Rosamund," "Balen," and a few minor poems, is complete.

URLIN, ETHEL. A Short History of Marriage. A popular account of a popular institution, this chatty and informing volume is of the kind that becomes a household favorite.

It contains a sketch of the evolution of Marriage and Marriage Customs, from the earliest days when "might was right," to the later developments of Marriage by Barter and Marriage by Consent. The variations of principle and practice concerning marriage among primitive and modern races in the East and West furnish material of absorbing interest to the student of Sociology, and the innumerable superstitions and observances associated with the Institution supply much novel and curious matter for the entertainment of the casual reader.

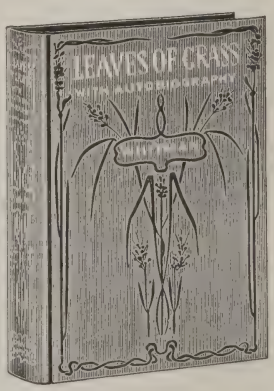
WHITMAN, WALT. Leaves of Grass. Variorum edition. Each poem has been compared with previous editions and all changes in the readings given in foot-notes. Together with a department of "Gathered Leaves," being a collection of poems discarded from the earlier editions. An autobiography in facsimile, and four portraits. 1 vol., crown 8vo, cloth, gilt top, uncut edges, ... 1 25



"It aims to give the growing as well as the grown Whitman. The accepted readings are given in the text. Each poem has been carefully compared with that appearing in all previous editions, and the changes have been inserted in foot-notes. The lines have been numbered, by which means the reader can readily compare the various readings and mark their transformations. Under the head of 'Gathered Leaves' I have collected such poems as have been dropped by the way, some of which appeared in only one, and others in several editions. I was frequently called upon to give information concerning poems whose headings had been changed. These have been noted, and in the alphabetical list at the end of the volume all such titles appear, with reference to the present title."—Preface.

It is a book which by its wealth of practical information is indispensable to all who are directly engaged in, or are in any way interested in, the important crafts with which it deals. "Carpentry and Joinery" has the peculiar merit that, in nearly every instance, the description of process and material, method and practice, is the direct outcome of actual experience and special investigation—that is, none of the cases dealt with is imaginary; they have all occurred in practice. Actual examples of all kinds of Carpentry and Joinery are described in clear and simple language and in careful detail, until the whole art and craft of Carpentry and Joinery is plainly revealed. The Editor has no rival in the production of books of recognized value on the handicrafts.

CABINET WORK AND JOINERY. Edited by Paul N. Hasluck. Comprising Designs and Details of Construction, with 2021 Working Drawings and 12 Colored Plates. 574 pages (6¼ x 8¾). Royal 8vo, cloth. Price, ... $3 00

Cabinet work and Joinery is the natural outcome of and sequel to "Carpentry and Joinery," with which work it is uniform in style and price. While the chief object of that work was to explain constructive principles adopted in the related crafts of carpentry and joinery, the present purpose is to give some hundreds of examples showing further how these principles are applied in everyday practice.

The present book devotes but little space to the rudiments of cabinet work and joinery, but makes a direct and immediate appeal to the constructive instinct of the craftsman by presenting him with an extensive and varied range of designs of completed articles, accompanied by full explanatory notes. No less than two hundred and fifty different designs with details are included in this book, the illustrations numbering 2021 in all.

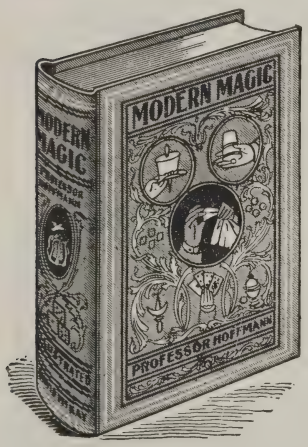
Many of these are simple pastimes, others possess a really scientific character, while the whole of these experiments may be performed without any special apparatus whatever. To give an idea of the endless variety of the work, we quote a few problems: A Rolling Body Goes Uphill, Foucault's Pendulum, The Egg in Salt Water, How to Make a Banana Peel Itself, Wine Changed to Water, The Plate on the Point of a Needle, How to Pierce a Nickel with a Needle, The Revolving Siphon, The Miniature Steamship, The Bottle Cannon, The Waltzing Egg, The Water Pendulum, In Water but not Wet, The Magic Ball, etc., etc. This entertaining book, written in language that every one can understand, gives the best answer to the so often repeated question, "What shall we do to-night?"



HOFFMANN, PROF. Modern Magic. A Practical Treatise on the Art of Conjuring. By Professor Hoffmann. With 318 Illustrations; 563 pages. With an Appendix containing explanations of many of the best known specialties of Maskelyne and Cooke. A handsome and substantial book, containing 300 tricks. Large 12mo, bound in cloth, . 1 50

Is a treatise, and a very practical one, on the art of conjuring, in its various and bewildering departments, some of which require special apparatus, most of which require that dexterity known as sleight-of-hand. There are, for example, card tricks which can be played with ordinary cards and without sleight-of-hand, and others again which demand special apparatus. There are coin tricks, tricks with watches, rings, handkerchiefs, dominoes, dice, etc.

The tricks are clearly and comprehensively explained by diagrams and illustrations when necessary. This book will afford an inexhaustible fund of amusement in a family where the young people are fond of games and are quick in acquiring these things. The explanations are given most comprehensively, and cover an immense field; besides, the book is filled with illustrations demonstrating the easiest way to accomplish these feats of legerdemain, magic, etc.

There is a vast difference between telling how a trick is done and teaching how to do it. This is the only book that teaches how to do it.

KELLAND, CLARENCE B. The American Boy's Workshop. For every boy who succeeded in making something he wanted there are a hundred who failed—and they failed because they didn't know just how to go at it. If they had a hint or a few suggestions as to plan, or a drawing to follow, they would have built their fishpoles or boats or desks. And that is one of the reasons for publishing this book—to give the boy the help he must have to make what he needs.

Fully illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth, .net, 1 25

In the preparation of this book the editor has secured the best men to write the various departments. For instance, "Things for Boys to Make" has been prepared by John L. Dougheny, who edits the "For Boys to Make" column of The American Boy Magazine. The chapter on "Signalling" was written by Lieutenant W. S. Anderson of the United States Navy. The chapter on "Small Furbearers and How to Catch Them" was written by George J. Thiesen, a noted trapper and woodsman. The chapter on the Bow and Arrow is by A. Hyatt Verrill, and so on, making a complete handybook for boys, not by one man, but many men of wide experience, each writing about the subject he knows best.

LOYD, SAM. A Puzzle Book for Children. A book that will be heartily welcomed by the thousands of children who have been solving the Loyd Puzzles in the leading magazines and newspapers.

120 pages of puzzles beautifully printed in two colors, bound in artistic covers. Wrappers printed in four colors. 4to, ... net, $1 00

The child loves puzzles in the same spirit that youthful pride is felt in physical superiority, puzzles offering a chance to display alertness of mind.

Nobody questions that young folks derive from puzzle-solving valuable training in concentration and correct methods of reasoning. Then, too, truths and principles are taught through puzzles in a never-to-be-forgotten way, for it is a labor of love. As the ancient philosopher says:—"What is learned with pleasure is never forgotten, but knowledge cannot be beaten into the head with a wormwood club."

Parents cannot too early encourage their children's love for puzzles. Mastering a problem through the force of his own reasoning power will imbue a child with pride and self-reliance that will act like a tonic on his intellectual growth.

This book of puzzles is particularly designed for young folk; there being nothing in the collection that might be considered to be beyond their ability to understand and master.

PATTEN, GILBERT. Clif Stirling Series. Each volume illustrated with colored frontispiece and eight half-tone engravings, handsomely bound in cloth and stamped in gold and colors.

Per volume, $1.00 Net.

That Mr. Patten, the author of the "Rockspur Series," has written another series of books for boys is good news indeed. Clif Stirling is a bright, wholesome, clean American boy, and the following of his career in school and college sports means a notable addition to books of the best character for juvenile readers.

——— Clif Stirling, Captain of the Nine. An exciting story of the events at Fairfield Academy during the baseball season. The description of the games for the championship with Belmont High School at the end of the season will appeal to any boy who is interested in school sports.

"Everyone who enjoys a lively, well-played game of baseball will find plenty in this book to thrill him. As a boy reader expresses it, you can fairly see the plays made and watch what each player is about."—Young People's Weekly, Elgin, Ill.

"I have read your book 'Clif Stirling, Captain of the Nine,' and enjoyed it very much. The story is a good one and should appeal to all young men who are in any way interested in athletic sports."—HARRY H. DAVIS, Captain Philadelphia Athletics, 1911 World's Champions.

——— Clif Stirling Behind the Line. A capital story of the football season at Fairfield. Introducing "The New Boy" Arthur Gregory who was regarded as a quitter, but saves the championship by his good play in the final game.

"It is a stirring story of boy life on the athletic field, just the kind of a story the real boy likes, and just the kind for him, clean, wholesome and entirely within his range."—Pittsburg Dispatch, June 11, 1911.

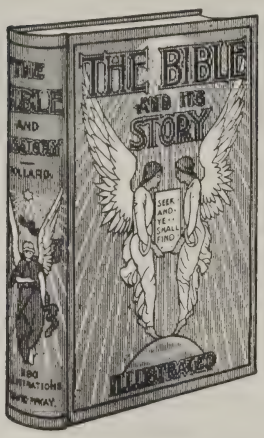
"The manly way in which the youth acts under all sorts of conditions commends him to everyone. So 'Clif Stirling Behind the Line' will be much appreciated."—The Boston Globe, May 20, 1911.

——— Clif Stirling, Stroke of the Crew. The third volume of the series is like the first two books, a tale of school boy sports, struggles, temptations, defeats, and victories in which big-hearted manly Clif plays the most prominent part.

——— Clif Stirling, Freshman at Stormbridge. The fourth volume of the Clif Stirling Series relates the experience and adventure of Clif Stirling during his first year at college.

POLLARD, JOSEPHINE. The Bible and Its Story. By Josephine Pollard, author of "The History of the New Testament in Words of One Syllable," "History of the Old Testament," "Battles of America," etc. 12mo, cloth, ... $1 00

The book comprises 576 pages, size 6 x 8 inches. There are 280 illustrations (many of them full-page), of which a complete list is prefixed to the volume. Especial attention is called to the index, which occupies 22 double-column pages, and contains upward of 2000 analytical references to the text. The great fullness of this index will of itself render the volume invaluable to all who believe that a familiar knowledge of the incidents of the Bible cannot be acquired at too early an age.



This volume has been published to assist parents, guardians, and teachers in the religious instruction of those under their charge, by enabling them to place in the hands of children a book which would reverently tell the Biblical story without sectarian bias.

Mrs. Josephine Pollard, the well-known popular writer for children, has put some of her best work into this beautiful book. She has taken the Bible at the first chapter of Genesis and retold the wonderful story step by step to the last chapter of Revelation. It has been to the writer evidently a labor of love. She enlists the reader's interest at once, and holds it to the end. Children will find it as fascinating as a fairy book. It is simplicity itself; yet, with all its simplicity, it is not childish.

——— Young Folks' Life of Jesus Christ. By Josephine Pollard, Author of "History of the Old Testament in Words of One Syllable," "History of the New Testament in Words of One Syllable," "Battles of America in Words of One Syllable," "The Bible and Its Story," etc. With 56 Full-page and Numerous Text Illustrations. STAPP, EMILIE B. The Go-Hawk Series. Only a few of us really know and understand children. Still fewer have the exquisite human talent of interpreting the childish heart. "Go-Hawks" goes into that small choice class that is about children and is for grown-ups too. Who will derive the more pleasure from these stories—the parents who read them aloud or the children who listen—will be hard to determine.

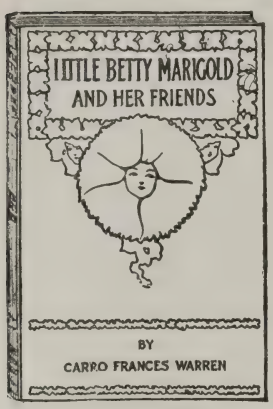
WARREN, CARRO FRANCES. The Garden Series. The child who reads the Garden Series will look with new eyes upon the great beautiful outdoors. No other books inspire such love for the simple beauties of nature, nor give instruction in such a charming way. Flowers of garden and wayside become in these delightful pages individuals with all the characteristics of well-known acquaintances. Without realizing where he has acquired the knowledge, the child will gain a tender familiarity with these blossoms of summer, recalling them as tried and faithful friends.



The sweetness and joy of country and garden and woodland breathes through every sentence. To the country boy and girl they are a real delight, to the dweller in the city they are a revelation.

There is a double page in colors showing all the flowers mentioned in the story and to identify each will afford a valuable nature study for little readers.

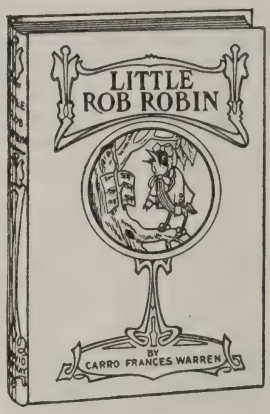
WARREN, CARRO FRANCES. Birdland Fairy Series.

LITTLE ROB ROBIN.



Every feathered songster that fills the woods with his music and cheerful twitter will be found in "The Birdland Fairy Series," which Miss Warren is bringing out to delight afresh her vast army of childish admirers.

In "Little Rob Robin" every chapter is a glimpse into a world of new delights. Such marvelous characters!—Rob and his sisters, Twitter and Fluffy, Dr. Wren and his amazing prescriptions for sick birds, talkative Miss Pecketty Pewee, funny Mrs. Wagtail, and a host of others equally amusing.

And Birdland is a place where such surprising things happen—the Woodpeckers' Surprise Party, for instance, the mishaps that befell disobedient little Rob, and many other astonishing and amusing things.

LITTLE CHICK CHICKADEE.

What little reader can fail to find intense delight in "Little Chick Chickadee?" The visit to the Rabbit family—the clever ruse by which the birds gained admittance—the advent of such wholly charming characters as the Snowflake Sisters, the Nuthatch family, and the villain of the play, Mr. Cunning Crow—these are links in a chain of happenings that hold the reader spellbound by their very originality and freshness.

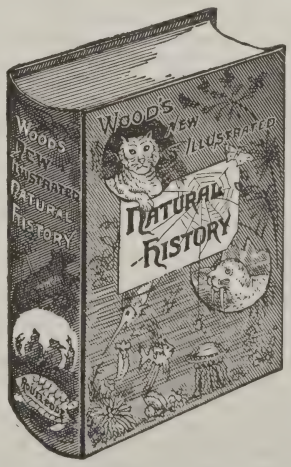
WOOD, REV. J. G., M.A. Popular Natural History. With 600 Illustrations by Wolf, Harrison Weir, and others. Handsomely bound, stamped in Gold and Colors. Crown 8vo, cloth, ... 1 50

No science exerts a greater influence in broadening and elevating the mind than that which treats of the nature, structure, and habits of the lower animals. This volume is made more interesting than most works on natural history for young readers because of its simple, graphic language, its accurate classification, and the number of anecdotes, nearly all of them new, which illustrate the ferocity or docility, the instinct and traits, of the humbler inhabitants of the earth. It is a condensation of his larger work, and has been prepared especially for the instruction and entertaining of the young.

WOOD, REV. J. G., M.A. New Illustrated Natural History. With many Hundred Illustrations from Designs by Wolf, Zwecker, Weir, Coleman, Harvey, and other Artists, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Stamped in Gold and Colors. Large 8vo, cloth, 2 50



Wood's "Natural History," with its charming descriptions and delightful anecdotes of all animals, both domestic and wild, is the greatest authority in the land. It gives, minutely and in the simplest language, the habits, haunts, diseases, and peculiarities of the entire animal kingdom. The descriptions of the animals are truthful and interesting. Their portraits, as shown in the hundreds of illustrations, are accurately drawn, and make us realize the variety and beauty of earth's creatures. The life and habits of animals, reptiles, birds, etc., are of equal interest to old and young.

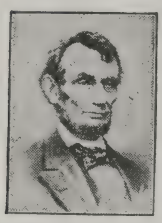
SCHOOLROOM PICTURES.

PORTRAITS OF WASHINGTON, LINCOLN, LONGFELLOW AND OTHER EMINENT MEN AND WOMEN.



The most appropriate decoration for the schoolroom, and an important requisite to the celebration of birthdays. These portraits are perfect likenesses, lithographed in black on white cardboard, full life size, 22 x 28 inches, as fine as steel, and guaranteed perfectly satisfactory.

We particularly recommend the portraits of Washington, Martha Washington, Lincoln, Longfellow, McKinley and Dewey.

In the preparation of these pictures, the drawings have been handled with intense feeling, and the pictures lack entirely the hard, metallic effect so pronounced in many others of a similar style. The likenesses are perfect, being made after the most authentic photographs. Selection may be made from the following subjects:

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

537 C. M.

JESUS, these eyes have never seen
That radiant form of thine;
The veil of sense hangs dark between
Thy blessèd face and mine.

2 I see thee not, I hear thee not,
Yet art thou oft with me;
And earth hath ne'er so dear a spot
As where I meet with thee.

3 Like some bright dream that comes unsought
When slumbers o'er me roll,
Thine image ever fills my thought,
And charms my ravished soul.

4 Yet though I have not seen, and still
Must rest in faith alone,
I love thee, dearest Lord, and will,

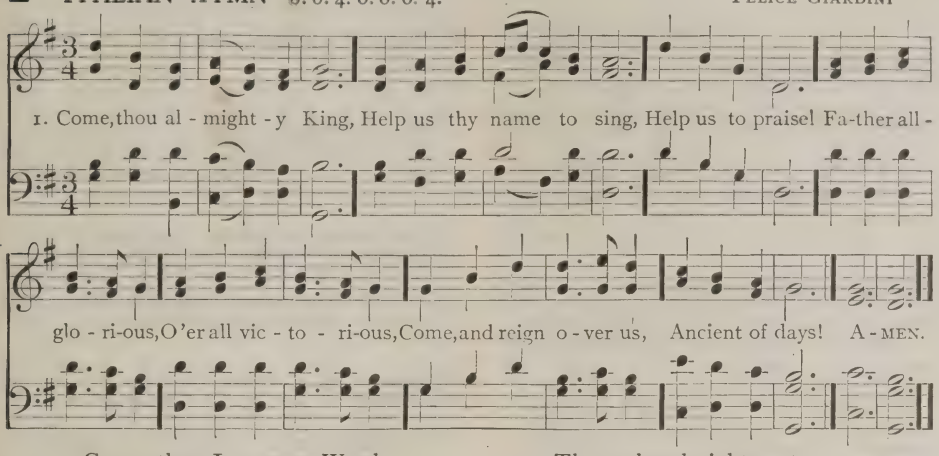
2 ITALIAN HYMN 6. 6. 4. 6. 6. 6. 4. FELICE GIARDINI



2 Come, thou Incarnate Word,
Gird on thy mighty sword,
Our prayer attend;
Come, and thy people bless,
And give thy word success:
Spirit of holiness,
On us descend!

3 Come, Holy Comforter,
Thy sacred witness bear,
In this glad hour:
Thou who almighty art,
Now rule in every heart,
And ne'er from us depart,
Spirit of power!

4 To the great One and Three,
Eternal praises be
Hence, evermore:
His sovereign majesty
May we in glory see,
And to eternity
Love and adore!

*METHODIST PULPIT.

These volumes are being furnished by Methodist preachers, each one having a volume to himself. The writers are chiefly in the pastorate, and are all living and working men. The sermons, when taken together, fairly represent, typically and suggestively, the drift and scope and doctrinal teaching of the leading pulpits of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the present time. They represent what these representative Methodist preachers are giving to their people in the regular way, week by week. Portrait. 12mo. Price, per volume, .50

Historical Maps for Bible Classes. Consist of seven maps mounted conveniently on a small metal tripod which can be easily shifted from place to place, and can be used where no wall space is available. The maps are a revised and condensed edition of the Historical Maps for Bible Students (wall maps), edited by Professor Charles Foster Kent, Ph.D., of Yale University, and Albert Alonzo Madsen, Ph.D. The aim has been to condense all the matter in that series (except the topographical map and chronological chart) in a lesser number of maps, thus reducing the size of the sheet without a proportional reduction in the size of the maps. Price, complete, prepaid. $5.00

The first sheet in the series is a map of the Sinaitic Peninsula, with Palestine to the north and a portion of the Nile and its delta to the southwest. It illustrates the period of the Exodus and of the wanderings of the Israelites in the wilderness.

The second sheet pictures Palestine as it was during the period when the Israelites were finding permanent homes in eastern and western Palestine. It is a well-known and now generally accepted fact that the Hebrew conquest of Palestine was gradual and at first only partial.

The third sheet represents conditions in Palestine during the period of the United Hebrew kingdom. It is an indispensable geographical guide in the study of the books of Samuel, Kings, and Chronicles. It also includes a plan of Solomon's temple.

The fourth sheet contains the lands of the ancient civilized world, including the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates, the Syrian coast, and a portion of the Nile valley. All important names of towns and districts are here found.

The fifth sheet presents a picture of conditions in Palestine after the exile and during the days of the restored Jewish community and of the later Maccabean kingdom. This map is especially useful in the study of the books of Ezra, Nehemiah, and the extra-canonical books of 1 and 2 Maccabees.

The sixth sheet presents Palestine in the time of Christ, and illustrates the gospel stories. New Testament names are brought out with special prominence. A plan of Jerusalem in the time of Christ and of Herod's temple complete the equipment for the study of this all-important period.

The last and seventh map presents the great Roman empire during the first Christian century, and illustrates the journeys of Saint Paul. Its great value is for the study of the Acts and the Epistles, and of the early missionary activity of the Church.
